	A principled approach: Respect for the community as the foundation for social, economic and cultural development, the right of the community to be involved in all aspects of the LECP processes and the right of communities to have a voice that articulates the diversity of need; Equality - that is concerned with the distribution of resources, power, status and relationships of respect and care among the diversity of people and communities ultimately leading to more equal social, economic and cultural development. A key focus should be on the achievement of women's equality which transcends equality of minority groups;
	Diversity - that is concerned with valuing difference and addressing its practical implications in policy, procedure and practice;
	Sustainability - that is concerned with developing and achieving communities that are sustainable and resilient in the face of the challenges of climate change and protection of ecosystems;
	Collaboration & Partnership – that is concerned with the development of processes that encourage and enable collective vision and the sharing of resources that enable objectives and actions to achieve the vision by agencies, organisations and communities.
	Equality and Human Rights A Statement of Equality and Human Rights as outlined in the document issued by the Local Government Management Agency and circulated to all local authorities, Promotion of Equality in the Delivery of the Local Economic and Community Plans , should be developed and included.
	Social Inclusion We suggest that the LCDC explicitly states its commitment to promoting social inclusion by tackling social exclusion as it is defined in the Irish Governments National Action Plan for Social Inclusion 2007 – 2016 as follows: "People are living in poverty if their income and resources (material, cultural and social) are so inadequate as to preclude them from having a standard of living which is regarded as acceptable by Irish society generally. As a result of inadequate income and resources people may be excluded and marginalised from participating in activities which are considered the norm for other people in society".

	Community Development & Local Development: Community development and local development should be noted as two separate though complementary processes. In that context we set out a definition of community development and local development:
	Community work/ community development "is a developmental activity comprised of both a task and a process. The task is the achievement of social change towards the achievement of equality, social justice and human rights and the process is the application of principles of participation, empowerment and collective decision making in a structured and coordinated way".
	Local development is defined as "The collective effort of a community to improve local, social and environmental conditions, it provides an opportunity for each of the three sectors (community, statutory agency and social partner) to act together for the benefit of the area."
	Approach:
	The need for strategies and actions to provide added-value.
	The need for collaborative approaches to strategies and actions
	The need for integration between social and economic planning and parity assigned to each;
	A focus on intervention, prevention and breaking the cycle;
	Process
	Participatory planning approaches should be utilised in order to ensure that the process of developing the LECP is participative, collaborative and consultative.

Promoting Social Inclusion, Health and Recreation:

Promote community and school gardens, include training and education, as a means of integrating people and providing for some of their food and recreational needs and to promote good physical and mental health, as well as to help combat obesity

Support local food banks to assist low income households Supporting schemes for Community Supported farming, linking farms or groups of farmers and growers with specific communities, including low income households, to provide food directly, giving the farmer a guaranteed income and putting the farmers 'face' on the food. This may include communities helping directly with production and harvesting.
Promote energy efficiency and insulation among low income households

Providing Education and Training:

Support for adult education and vocational training based at Claremont College

Promoting Tourism:

Develop and promote two hour looped walks around the county, similar to those developed in the Slieve Blooms by Laois County Council.

Develop and promote a footpath along the whole coast of Wicklow, linking with the Wexford coastal path. There is already a path along the whole coast of Wales. A coastal path on this side of the Irish Sea would enable visitors to "Walk the Irish Sea" or to take "The Celtic Sea Walk" by using the existing ferry links. The coastal walk should also link with the Wicklow Way to bring the greatest benefits to tourism in Wicklow. This has the potential to be one of the great trails of Europe. I am prepared to assist in bringing stakeholders together with the relevant Welsh footpaths officer who could outline the economic benefits to be gained from the proposal.
