OUR MISSION STATEMENT

“To improve the quality of life for the people and communities of County Wicklow through sustainable development, efficiently delivered effective services, democratic civic leadership, and co-ordination with other public, community and private organisations to optimise available resources.”

County Wicklow Profile

County Wicklow had an estimated population of 126,194 (CSO 2006). Wicklow is one of the most rapidly growing counties in Ireland and as part of the Greater Dublin Area; it is subject to many of the pressures emanating from the expansion of the capital city.

The typical topography in Wicklow is one of mountains, rolling foothills, forests, coastline and lakes with attractive views and prospects. The County is dominated by the Wicklow Mountains. With the exception of a narrow coastal strip and some low ground in the south, most of County Wicklow lies above the 200-metre contour line and over one third of the County lies above the 300-metre contour line.

The spine of the mountain range formed of granite runs in a Northeast to Southwest direction across the county. The glaciation period in Wicklow contributed significantly to the overall physical appearance of the County with the distinctive glaciated "U" shaped valley, moraines, corries and glacial lakes, along with other glacial and peri glacial features and landforms. Among the most distinctive features are the Sally Gap, Powerscourt Waterfall and Glendalough, which accommodates the internationally renowned early monastic site. Wicklow also has a 66-km coastline, which is renowned for its shingle and sandy beaches.

The principal towns in County Wicklow are located along the east coast with a second linear arrangement of smaller centres in the west. The principal transport routes are the N11 in the east and the N81 in the west. East-west movement is restricted by mountains.

There are five electoral areas for Wicklow County Council (Bray, Greystones, Wicklow, Arklow, Baltinglass) and four Town Councils (Arklow, Bray, Greystones and Wicklow).

Introduction

Wicklow Local Authorities generally have three principle roles:

They are providers of essential public services, which play a great part in the quality of life of individuals and communities. These include public housing, roads and footpaths, water supply and sewerage, fire brigades, waste disposal and recycling facilities, arts and leisure infrastructure.

They are planners and regulators for the betterment and protection of the citizens of Wicklow. Examples are Development Plans, the 'Outlook' County Strategy, traffic and transportation Plans, Waste Plans, Housing Strategies, and the regulation of Planning, Waste collection and disposal, Building Regulations, private rented accommodation, drinking water quality, water pollution, etc.

As democratically elected bodies, they are the champions and spokespersons for Wicklow and its people.

Wicklow Local Authorities believe that the people and communities of Wicklow deserve high quality services from their Local Authorities. We will continue to deliver our services to best standards, focussing on the needs of those who use them. Wherever possible and affordable we will improve the quality and effectiveness of these services whether or not they are specifically referred to in our list of key objectives.
