Prevent housing developments on SAC's and rezone said lands so that they are protected and enhanced rather than threatened and degraded. The land in question is Knocksink Woods. Any plans for development along the Glencullen River should be made in close consultation with ecology experts. It is possible and also crucial to have both houses and protect biodiversity at the same time. Current plans by Capami for housing on Kilgarron Hill are in breach of European protections and must be stopped. The result should be the establishment of a protected nature corridor along the length of the river and the Dargle Basin. Our future depends on steps like these.
