Extending the Blessington Greenway will be an excellent decision. It will make it a world class facility with those views alone! It would make it a tourist destination with the proper marketing, transport links to Dublin, maybe camping facilities, hostel, b and bus, as from my experience as a touring cyclist, I dont use hotels much, but prefer to be close to nature after a days cycling. Have cycled the existing greenway numerous times while out training, and also with younger family members. You would want to get a move on with it as there seems to be alot of funding around at the moment, or you'll miss the greenway boat/ craze.
