Submission

Proposed new footpath to Kindlestown Hill Woods from Greystones (white arrows as indicated)

Justification: The views from Kindlestown Woods to the Sea are on a par with those from Bray Head. However, these woods are currently very underappreciated due to the need to drive there – a circuitous busy 3Km drive from Greystones. This is particularly sorry situation given these woods are only a few fields away from the residents and pupils of Greystones directly below. Further, given these woods were likely the location of a Viking Hill Fort, and given this path would follow the most direct route to the Irish Sea, one could call the footpath The Viking Trail or something similar.
